The Boy Who Glowed in the Dark is the third book of the "Boy from the Reactor" trilogy, and maintains the fast pace and page-turning properties of the original two volumes. While the book does pay homage to the original two books in the series in order to catch the reader up, it makes much more sense if you begin with the initial two books of the series.

"The fate of the world depends on us." With one mysterious e-mail, Bobby Kungenook—the teenage hockey phenom living undercover and guarding part of a revolutionary scientific breakthrough—realizes someone else shares his secret. The sender summons Bobby from New York to a rendezvous in radioactive Japan. There, with the help of Bobby's guardian, Nadia Tesla, the two will forever alter mankind's destiny. But dangerous people from Bobby's haunted past are hot on his heels, determined to possess what could be the power of life and death. And when the enigmatic e-mail sender, Genesis II, is kidnapped after a bloody showdown on the scarred streets of Fukushima, Bobby must tap into his remarkable abilities to pursue the brutal captors into the forbidding reaches of Siberia—and the land where his journey began. As the Nadia Tesla series races to its stunning conclusion on the frozen shores of Lake Baikal, the boy from reactor four will claim his fate and become a legend.

There's Magda, the drug-addicted surfer chick, Gita, who juggles sexual relationships, and Boogie, an overweight ten-year-old. Teasley follows her characters deep into the mire. "Baker" emerged from the 1997 rape and murder of a seven-year-old in a Nevada casino. In "Holiday Confessional," a character flees after witnessing a crime to then share the secret with two strangers in a bar. Set in New York, Los Angeles, Paris, and Baja, Lisa Teasley's stories illuminate society's darker side.

The loss of a child is the worst nightmare of any parent. The scar from this tragedy runs deep and sometimes hard to heal. In this book a woman tells of her journey through the dark pit of grief, how God pursued her into the pit. Leaning completely on God's presence and comfort He was able to restore the joy-of-the-Lord by healing her completely from all pain, sorrow, and shame of tragedy. In the process she discovers Life altering truths about God. Yes, complete healing, without lingering grief symptoms is completely possible after the death of a child! "To console those who mourn in Zion, to give them beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness; That they may be called trees of righteousness, the planting of the LORD, that He may be glorified." —Isaiah 49:13 NLT

"So why am I here?" Marriet asked. "You are here because you've been chosen," said Palmators. "Chosen? Chosen for what?" Marriet said. "Marriet Sworn, you have no idea what is coming, do you?" said Palmators. Marriet stood looking serious now in front of the Caretaker. "No," she said. Marriet Sworn is invited into the divine museum, Alcha Prunchtis, by the museum's caretaker, Palmators Squild, when a mysterious thief somehow ends up stealing some of the divine relics inside the museum. In order to restore balance to life and all of its possibilities, she must track down this thief, stop him, and bring back the Eternity Cube, the most powerful of all the divine relics. On her new journey, she will go through time, and through many possibilities of life, and from these possibilities, she will finally meet Harlay Colspo, discover the criminal mastermind, Depthtus, learn of the missing angel, Varyl, and experience the wrath of her father, Alatar Skyrise. She will know the feud between Colspo and Volance Melthom, and amongst the battles, the war, and all the miracles, she will find out a shocking truth that will change everything.

A Golden Glow in the East brings together letters Esther Nairn wrote to her family from China and Japan from 1910 to 1925, when she was a teacher with the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society. She had graduated in 1909 from the University of Rochester, which first admitted women in 1900. "Esther Nairn's (luckily-saved) letters home - from when she headed out to China in 1910 as a young missionary, through her years of running a girls school in Shaoshing - are a joy to read, for this spirited redhead who loves her life and her work sees much to be enchanted by, much too to laugh about. And it's with a quick-paced, insightful prose that she reports the wonders of her Chinese adventure - set in the mission community off Silk and Satin Lane with summer months in the misty mountains of Mokansan ." "Back for final days in America, she sends her love to the Chinese. This woman who so often celebrated the play of light in China, the glow of lantern, firefly, sun and moon, is herself a golden glow - and with sparks." - Peggy Thomson Author of nine books for children, including City Kids in China.

We've all seen them: kids hypnotically staring at glowing screens in restaurants, in playgrounds and in friends' houses—and the numbers are growing. Like a virtual scourge, the illuminated glowing faces—the Glow Kids—are multiplying. But at what cost? Is this just a harmless indulgence or fad like some sort of digital hula-hoop? Some say that glowing screens might even be good for kids—a form of interactive educational tool. Don't believe it. In Glow Kids, Dr. Nicholas Kardaras will examine how technology—more specifically, age-inappropriate screen tech, with all of its glowing ubiquity—has profoundly affected the brains of an entire generation. Brain imaging research is showing that stimulating glowing screens are as dopaminergic (dopamine activating) to the brain's pleasure center as sex. And a growing mountain of clinical research correlates screen tech with disorders like ADHD, addiction, anxiety, depression, increased aggression, and even psychosis. Most shocking of all, recent brain imaging studies conclusively show that excessive screen exposure can neurologically damage a young person's developing brain in the same way that cocaine addiction can. Kardaras will dive into the sociological, psychological, cultural, and economic factors involved in the global tech epidemic with one major goal: to explore the effect all of our wonderful shiny new technology is having on kids. Glow Kids also includes an opt-out letter and a "quiz" for parents in the back of the book.
